

You are living in a cruel and elaborate computer simulation, created by higher beings as an experiment in complexity. These higher beings have long since grown tired by the simulation, though, and are now willing to offer you a choice. Touching the area below will end the simulation. This universe and everything inside it will then cease to exist, including you. However, you will save billions of simulated organisms from tedium, pain, suffering, disease, war, starving, and death. The choice is yours.

Pressing this area will disrupt the space-time
continuum and end
existence as you know
it. You have been warned.

Kind regards,
The Overlords